Resolutions of Respect.

Our brother, Prof. Jacob Ward Rust, L.L.D., died June 8th, 1890. The life of Bro. Rust was so intimately connected with the life of the Hopkinsville Baptist church, and the result of the last years of his life so directly helpful to the church's upbuilding, that we deem it our privilege and duty to give expression to the high esteem in which we held him; therefore be it Resolved, By the Hopkinsville Baptist church that the following tribute to his character be entered upon the minutes of the church, and be furnished to the papers for publication.

It may well be said of Bro. Rust that he has finished his course. No life is perfect, and no record of usefulness is complete, but among those who approach nearest to this ideal we write his name. Deprived in early life of those surroundings which fit men for easy access to prominence, and having to cut out his own pathway to the positions which he occupied, he acquired some little peculiarities—peculiarities of strength, peculiarities as harmless and innocent as the fancies of a little child, which, however, to some extent, blinded the unseeing and unthinking to the greatness and excellence of his gifts.

His intuition, his insight into things, was unusually developed, and perhaps was his most striking quality. No man came more quickly and more correctly to an opinion of men or of measures. This was evidenced by the fact that in church and association and convention his opinion was sought by brethren upon every measure for adoption and upon every man for promotion.

Yet how can we say that any quality was more largely developed in him than his love of peace and his ability to maintain and restore peace among those disposed to faction. "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the sons of God." Then was he a son of God beyond all question. In the more troublous times of the past, when denominational lines were warring and churches were being torn asunder, he felt it his mission to allay the fever of excitement and to heal the wounds of conflict. Well did he fulfill that mission. Who has not heard him say: "Let us never divide on double issues. Let us stand on those where good brethren are on both sides." No work is more to the heart of God; no work more to the heart of our deceased brother. In his love of peace he was ready to take a position upon issues, and when responsibility came he was ready to meet them. He never shirked an unpleasant duty. In emergencies his brethren always put him at the front. And yet how sensitive, how delicately sensitive he was! The approbation of his friends and brethren was sweet to him, and the slightest manifestation of their lack of sympathy or approval was as a pain in his heart, but even this did not make him hesitate or halt in his plan of action. He had largely a woman's nature. It was the impulse of his mind to command and uphold. He was the joy of his pastor's heart.

He was energetic to restlessness. He grew on activity and declined when forced into inaction. God made him a hammer. There was no eloquent of the anvil in him, save to bear in pain some unkind hand strike. He wrought, he suffered, he rejoiced, he loved with every fibre of his being. Who does not weep yet when he thinks of how he suffered when so recently that sweet little flower of his life was plucked? Who does not rejoice when memory recalls his exaltation over the honors heaped upon the son of his affections?

We shall miss his hearty greetings, his unlimited hospitality, his tender sympathy, his wise counsels. The many whom he has helped to education and usefulness now mourn his loss. The many of those who had gone before him have greeted him upon the other shore. Surely was his nature and spirit fitted to enjoy beyond measure such a welcome, such a reunion.

As a public man lack of scholarship did not keep him back, but his wide experience, his ready wisdom, his quick perception won him a useful and honorable place in the front ranks of his brethren. He was a speaker of rare extemporaneous powers. Overflowing with genial humor, quick at repartee, wielding that peculiar power—the logic of instinct which always hits the mark—he was as useful as he was interesting and self-sacrificing. The spontaneity of a warm heart and brain drove him into unselfish devotion to his brother and the cause. At the recent General Association "though dead he was yet alive," for even there his influence was as manifest as ever it was in the days of his life. In his profession his charity was as wide as his affection for the young, and not even the advice of loved ones, nor the decrepitude of age, nor the feebleness of declining health, nor the feeling of declining health, nor the grief of grave could dissuade him from his life and are heavy laden with the harvest of his life. He died before rest came to him, and the first ease and calm and quiet he has known for half a century came to him that sweet Sabbath morn when he went to the Master. "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest," was the summons that called him home.

We extend to his bereaved ones our tenderest affections, and offer for their sustaining our prayers to Him who doeth all things well.

Drunkennes—Liquor Habit—In all the World there is but One Cure, Dr. Haines' Golden Syrup.

It can be taken in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it, effecting a speedy and permanent cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been cured who have taken the Golden Syrup in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. No harmful effect results from its administration. Cures guaranteed. Send for circular and full particulars. Address in confidence, GOLDEN SYRUP CO., 185 Race Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

A CHILD KILLER.

Another child killed by the use of opiate given in the form of Soothing Syrup. Nature's Freak.

Rock Lick, July 10.—This quiet little Kentucky town has been in a great state of excitement for the last three weeks, and the female portion of the populace is in high feather, for they have a phenomenal child birth to discuss, and can tell more reasons for it than the most expert man of medicine science can.

On May 22 Mrs. J. S. Morton gave birth to what was at first supposed to be twins. Imagine the consternation when the doctors and nurses and the women of the town, who are always called on in such occasions, discovered that while there were two heads and four feet there was only one body.

The lower and upper extremities of the body were perfectly formed, and the doctors and nurses and the women of the town, who are always called on in such occasions, discovered that while there were two heads and four feet there was only one body.

The two boys are healthy, and give every promise of living to bud the medical fraternity in telling us how it happened. The double boy weighed ten pounds, and his parents are now at a great loss to know whether they have two children or one, and whether to call one Harrison and the other Morton or to collectively call the two Blaine.

A Remarkable Showing.

It is estimated that Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky., is used in not less than eight hundred thousand families. In many localities it has entirely taken the place of quinine, having all the good qualities of this drug, and none of its evil tendencies. It is a true tonic, and has a most beneficial effect on the circulation and prevents congestion. It reduces morbid temperature and allays all febrile symptoms. It is a true anti-periodic and will prevent or cure chills and fever with invariable certainty. In malarial districts, where colds, fever, influenza, etc., are common, it is almost a sacred duty to take Smith's Tonic Syrup occasionally, as by this means the good health of the family is preserved.

"I judge that young man is all broken up by the pieces he sends in," remarked the editor, casting a doggerel into the waste basket.—Plunder.

WE CAN AND DO.

Guarantee Dr. Acker's Blood Elixir for it has been fully demonstrated to the people of this country that it is superior to all other preparations for blood diseases. It is a positive cure for syphilis, poisoning, Eruptions, and Pimples. It purifies the whole system and thoroughly builds up the constitution.

Both Ankles Crushed.

In a railroad smash up in 1876, I had both ankles badly crushed. Soon after Blood Poison set in, and both legs from my knees down, were covered with ulcerated sores that refused all effort to heal. I was virtually helpless for ten years, being bedridden most of the time. During all the time I was attended by the best physicians in this section of the State, and must have taken a cart load of medicines, without receiving any relief or being benefitted in any way. In 1887 I was induced to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I commenced to improve from the first dose, and continued to get better, until to-day I am as sound and well as any man in the business. This was two years ago, and which I have had no return of sores or any pain in the legs. From my experience I conscientiously believe that Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) is as good as a blood purifier, and a powerful remedy for any ailment suffering from any disease of the blood.

ABOUT CO-EDUCATION.

It develops the Best Traits of Character in Girls and Boys.

It is the most natural thing in the world for the little boy to lead his little sister or girl friend—knowing no difference between the sexes, save that of their dispositions or qualities. He will go first, though with beating heart, perhaps, that he may protect her from the terrible gander, which with outstretched wings and hideous open beak and frightening cry, is advancing toward them; he will give her the nicest cherries, he will carry her books, he will help her to cross the brook or to climb the fence, and he will love her truly and tenderly, and all without fear or shame.

The little girl will as naturally seek his companionship, she will admire his prowess in facing danger, and gratefully accept all the tokens of his care, while she feels her superiority in the matters of daintiness, taste and propriety, and she will love him as sweetly and tenderly as he loves her.

Studying together, playing together, growing together both mentally and physically, the boy's manly qualities become strengthened by the use to which they are put. A sense of his responsibility as a protector and helper, develops his powers. At the same time he becomes more truly gentle and affectionate in all his ways. He finds that cowardice, laziness and impurity are held in great contempt by his fair associates, as courage, honesty and purity are highly esteemed, and he becomes brave and true, daring and pure; truly a gentleman.

The girl, his associate, is learning, too. She finds that cowardice, deceit, vanity and petty spite are not considered as attractions by her boy friends, and, becoming ashamed of them, seeks to cultivate the opposing virtues. She learns, too, to take broader views of things and of life; to outgrow the littleness which is the bane of women educated without male companionship.

Both cease to be masked enemies seeking to outwit each other as in a game, and become capable of loyal friendships and comradeships, understanding and appreciating each other.—Toronto Globe.

MAGNIFICENT SYRACUSE.

What is Left of the Famous Capital of Sicily's Athenian Empire.

There are few cities in Europe, and there is none in Sicily, so replete with classical interest as the once magnificent city of Syracuse, against whose walls was shattered the prowess of the brilliant and mighty Athenian empire. Sadly fallen, indeed, are the fortunes of the Syracuse of today. The resistless progress of devastation caused by the action of man and of time is probably nowhere more effectively witnessed than at Syracuse. The few suburbs which were included within the ancient walls have shrunk to the modern town which covers the site of the old Otygia, the spot where the Corinthian adventures settled. 734 B. C., and from whence rose "the greatest and fairest of all Greek cities." Of these four towns, containing superb public and private buildings, nothing comparatively speaking, but a few large stones remain. Since the time when the city was pillaged and fired by the Saracens in 878 the ruins have wasted and molded away, the crumbling dust being swept by the breeze into the sea, and the site upon which so many world-important actions have taken place is now converted into corn-fields rudely tilled, whilst here and there a farmstead dots the lonely and desolate expanse. The leading features of the suburbs of Syracuse still remain the same, and the student of Thucydides can easily trace for himself all the varying movements of the great Athenian siege. The magnificent sheltered harbor is still, as on the memorable day when Nikias and his Generals in the Athenian triremes hurled themselves with desperation against the vessels of the Spartan Gylippus, who, having blockaded the entrance to the harbor with chains, held the Athenian navy as in a vice. The two land armies watched the engagements from the banks, and stimulated the combatants with loud shouts, described by Thucydides as resembling the surging of a dramatic chorus. How the Athenian power was overwhelmed, and how, after a few days of misery, Nikias and his blood-stained and broken battalions surrendered, and Demosthenes capitulated; and how the seven thousand prisoners were taken to the stone quarries to die a day's death of disease, hunger and thirst, are facts too well-known to need recounting. Oddly enough, when I first entered the harbor of Syracuse it was occupied by a more peaceful though less picturesque fleet than those of ancient Athens or Syracuse, viz., the Italian fleet of ponderous black ironclads, with a horde of waspish, spiteful torpedo boats flitting across the blue waters of the expansive harbor, which twenty-three centuries before had been beaten into bloody surf by splashing oars and the clashing of mighty triremes.—Art Journal.

HIS FIRST SERMON.

Rev. Dr. Thomson's Admits It Was Not a Success.

My introduction to the ministry was not formal. I began speaking in "voluntary meetings," and when the "leader" came near was greatly frightened and tried to relate what little "experience" I had, not knowing what I would say nor what I had said when done. By degrees more composure was gained, and I was urged to "exhort" at little gatherings for worship; and then as a student at the age of eighteen was presented at a number of us were returning from a camp-meeting. There were several ministers in the company; all were on horseback. I rode alone all day to prepare for the service, and arranged my subject under four heads or divisions, as was then the custom in sermonizing. I was a very happy man, and mind religiously; the little log-house was lighted with candles and filled with plain country people. The preacher, as a bench back of me, and I went through the opening exercises in a devotional spirit and without embarrassment, and in the same state of mind announced the text, and had spoken perhaps not more than three minutes when my thoughts left me and the dimly-lighted room began to grow darker. I thought of my "second division" and tried that, but all seemed vacant; not able to remember the "third division" I caught the "fourth," but it brought no relief, and by great efforts I recovered myself sufficiently to say in broken words that I had consented to try to speak but could not, and sat down in the confusion deeply mortified over the failure.

One of the preachers, a florid speaker, arose and gave a brilliant exhortation that served to fill out the hour very well, but it brought me no relief, for the contrast made my own littleness appear still less. The next day I read alone and thought it all over; I felt I had mistaken my calling and had been deserted and left to stand alone and fall; but the conviction of duty returned, and urged by my teacher I consented to try again; this time, too, it was in a school-house, but in the afternoon. Only a few were present, and I had been in such fear for hours that it could not grow worse, and so managed to get through, speaking some thirty minutes.

Returning home once, perhaps a year after, I spoke of having "preached" at a certain place. My father, a thoughtful man, inclined to the Quaker faith and worship, looked up from the paper he was reading and said: "Son, say you tried to preach, and that is what I have been doing ever since. Long experience has given more confidence, but it has not lightened the deep sense of burden and responsibility, and of dependence upon a higher power for help.—W. H. Thomas in Chicago Tribune.

Her Idea of Marriage.

A servant-girl living with a lady in Iowa came to her mistress one day and said: "I'm sorry, ma'am, but I'll have to leave you next month. Me and my young man are going to get married then." "Very well, Mary," replied the lady. "I hope, however, that you have given the matter careful consideration, and counted the cost in case one makes a mistake in marrying." "La, ma'am, it ain't going to cost me anything," was the immediate reply. "He's to buy the license his own self, you know."—Youth's Companion.

SUPPLEMENTAL REGISTRATION.

The supplemental registration of voters will be made in the County Clerk's office on Monday July 22. This is in no sense a regular registration day for those who failed to register in June, but is for only two classes of voters, those kept away by sickness or who were necessarily out of the county all four of the regular days. Every voter registered must make affidavit and a heavy penalty attaches to false swearing in the matter. Below is the law on subject:

HOW ABSENTEES MAY REGISTER.
§ 15. Any person entitled to register, who was necessarily absent from the county of Christian during the days allowed for registration under and by the provisions of this act, or who was ill during the said time, or who was unable to attend the place of registration on account of the sickness of some named member of his family, may have his name placed upon the registry for the precinct of which he lives by attending the county clerk's office, at the time hereinafter specified, and making affidavit before the clerk showing the facts required to be stated in the registry by section five of this act, and showing the absence or sickness hereinbefore referred to.

§ 16. On the last Monday in July in each year and on the Saturday preceding the Congressional election, the county clerk of Christian county shall receive in a bound book, to be kept by him for that purpose, the affidavits provided for in the preceding sections and shall place the names of persons making such affidavits upon the proper registration books, and shall write his name as clerk, and the date of the registry after the name of the person so registered in the column headed "remarks." For this he shall receive a fee of ten cents for each name registered by him under this act, to be paid for his expenses of registration are paid.

§ 17. Any person making any false statement in an affidavit taken under this act shall be deemed guilty of false swearing, and punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years. And any county clerk or deputy thereof, who fraudulently registers the name of any person, knowing that such person is not entitled to be registered, or registers a name at a time other than that provided in this act, shall on indictment be deemed guilty of a felony and punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than five years.

§ 18. Any person in the county court clerk's office may challenge the right of any voter to register under this act and thereupon the county clerk shall examine such voters, and any witness who may be offered under oath, and shall hear and determine the question of his right to register. And the duties herein imposed upon the county clerk may be performed by his deputy and he or his deputy may administer oaths under this act.

The Hopkinsville American thinks the editor of the Kentuckian should be arrested under the Federal law for the part he has taken in exposing the corruption in the sheriff's office under recent administrations. This ridiculous assine attempt at intimidation will have as little effect as other methods that have been adopted to keep the Kentuckian from publishing the facts. There is no Federal law under which the freedom of the press can be interfered with or a citizen of a State arrested for discussing the public record of a state or county officer. There are, however, laws under which the grand jury can indict for publishing obscene literature and for other offenses, as the American people happened to find out when the last tribunal of that sort sat in Christian county.

Cholera infantum has lost its terrors since the introduction of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. When that remedy is used and treatment as directed with each bottle is followed, a cure is certain. Mr. A. W. Walter, a prominent merchant at Whitesburg, Ill., says: "I cured my baby boy of cholera infantum after several other remedies had failed. The child was so low that he seemed almost beyond the reach of human hands or reach of any medicine." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavel.

CERULEAN SPRINGS.

CERULEAN SPRINGS, July 20.—A genuine boom is now prevailing here in excess of anything ever seen within the history of the springs. Applications for rooms are coming in every day, notwithstanding the hotel is now full, but all get stowed away somehow, and intend to have a good time at all hazards.

The guests have been all astir over the coming of Co. D. Ky. State Guards, as a still livelier time is looked forward to during their stay. They put in an appearance at 5 a. m., and went directly to the camp grounds adjacent to the hotel. No tents had arrived for the boys and they were compelled to take refuge in some cabins on the ground, which afforded a very good substitute. Tents were ordered some days since from Col. Ford, but for some reason were not supplied. About twenty of the guards are here and more are expected to join the company during the week. Breakfast was served at 8 a. m., and was somewhat refreshing after the long drive from Hopkinsville, starting at 2 a. m. Their object in starting at night was to arrive here early in the morning to arrange for camp. The boys are already making preparations to spread a dinner for the ladies Wednesday, and much pleasure is expected from their presence at camp.

The coming week will be the greatest in the history of the springs, which are assuming immense pretensions and ranking among the most popular to be found anywhere.

Mr. W. T. Radford is here and has added ten years to his life. He makes a rule at the table never to let a dish pass him.

Charlie Thompson is drinking the water on scientific principles, and "is havin' of a good time." Dr. R. R. Bourne can be seen at the spring every morning at 5 o'clock, and never drinks less than ten dippers of the health-giving waters.

Mrs. Virginia Latham, who has sojourned here for a week, leaves tomorrow for home, much to the regret of all who have made her acquaintance.

Misses Cora Petree and Mary Feiland arrived Saturday and will spend several days.

Dr. C. P. Bacon and wife and daughter, Miss Mayo, and Miss Emma Boyd, of Evansville, are making their annual stay here.

Jno. W. Landrum, of Mayfield, spent Saturday and Sunday here. He returned home but will be on hand Friday night for the german. John is very popular with all, and the inquiring minds find trouble in exactly locating the objective center of his affections.

The first german of the season will be given Friday night by the lady visitors, and will be a very brilliant affair. The event is looked forward to with pleasure, and the combination of grace, beauty, brass buttons, gallant soldiers and polished gentlemen will indeed be grand.

Cerulean is truly in her glory. Persons leaving on the early morning L. & N. train make close connection at Clarksville for Cerulean.

John P. Campbell sprained his ankle while acting the part of a gallant, and will be compelled to be only a spectator at the dances for the present.

CASKY.

CASKY, July 19.—Miss Mary Brame is visiting Miss Allie Bradshaw this week.

Dr. John A. Gunn was here several times this week on professional business.

Prof. S. L. Frogge, the next Supt. of Schools, spent Sunday last with "The Colonel."

Walter E. Warfield, Jr., who has been quite ill for a week past, is now improving.

Col. Hugh Nelson, of Hopkinsville, is spending several days the guest of "Squire Warfield this week.

Misses Eunice and Mai Fuqua are being entertained by Miss Annie Bradshaw at "Ashbrook."

Mrs. J. H. Kelly, of Galveston, Tex., is visiting Mrs. Ora Kelly this week.

L. McGrew, representing Work Bros., Chicago, was here Saturday.

"Squire W. E. Warfield, who has been quite sick with flux, is now improving.

The "Feast in the Wilderness" is in full blast this week. Every train brings a crowd.

MONTGOMERY.

MONTGOMERY, Ky., July 13.—We are quite dry—no rain of consequence since the 14th of June. Corn had begun to twist badly and in some places to burn until a small cloud visited this neighborhood and poured out its loving contents, which was highly appreciated.

Wheat threshing is well under way and the yield is poor—not over 30 per cent. of a crop will be realized.

Throughout this neighborhood, Mrs. Geo. Ladd, of Cerulean Springs, has been quite ill for some time, and is to-day reported no better.

Mr. W. F. Ladd, of Bowling Springs, is at his father's, Mr. W. B. Ladd's.

We are sorry to hear of Mr. Fenton's illness, but glad to state he is much better now and will, we think, be able in a few days to resume business.

Rev. J. U. Spurlin preached at Buffalo last Sunday. Quite a large crowd was present.

Rev. Shelton, of Russellville, has resigned his pastorate at Rocky Ridge to accept a call at Princeton. Bro. Shelton is a fine orator.

Mr. Editor, I like to have forgotten to tell of my having watermelons today. Come down in the near future and have some with me.

The fruit crop is slim. There will be but few apples, peaches or pears in this neighborhood.

Miss Burnie Warren, of Gracey, is visiting the family of Mr. Jeff Ladd. She will be sadly missed when gone from this neighborhood. Come again, Miss Burnie, and stay longer.

Those tax payers who have had their taxes raised or miscalculated have shown commendable forbearance in not having the guilty parties arrested for the obtaining of money under false pretenses.

To place Mr. Boyd under bond at this time would enable him to cry persecution and to pose as an example of injured innocence. He should not be molested during his canvass, although the developments in the pending investigation are of the most exasperating character.

The grand jury which meets in September will inquire into the various offenses that have been committed, and before such a tribunal the loudest of bluster and bravado will count for nothing. The penalties of the law will certainly be enforced and no guilty man will go unpunished.

The Farmers' and Laborers' Union has scored a substantial triumph in Tennessee. John P. Buchanan, of Rutherford county, a farmer and President of the State Union, has been given the Democratic nomination for Governor and his election in November is a foregone conclusion.

Mr. Buchanan is a young man only 43 years of age, is a sound and consistent Democrat and won on his merits in a close and doubtful contest by the united support of the farmers. This shows what can be done by united action and shows further that the order in Tennessee has acted sensibly in looking to the Democratic party for relief instead of going into an independent movement.

A carpenter by the name of M. S. Powers, fell from the roof of a house in East Des Moines, Iowa, and sustained a painful and serious sprain of the wrist, which he cured with one bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says it is worth $5 a bottle. It cost him 50 cents. For sale by Buckner Leavel.

Two colored importations named Boyd and Williams spoke at a pow-wow at the Court House Friday night. The first named was from Tennessee and was sent for to help inflame the colored voters and keep them from voting contrary to the needs of their self-constituted masters. His speech and others that followed it were of a very bitter and incendiary character, and harangues of the same sort were indulged in by two or three of the Republican candidates. Just why the party managers found it necessary to import these colored orators when they have so much local talent standing ready to be employed has not been explained.

The question of politics in the present canvass has in a measure disappeared in the face of the greater questions of official integrity and honesty that have thrust themselves into the campaign. The masses of the people are honest and believe in honesty. They think and act for themselves. The issue now before the people will and should obliterate party lines. There is no longer any well informed man who doubts that there was crookedness in the sheriff's office for many years. The truth was rather slow in coming, but it finally came and came with crushing force. The people were at first incredulous, but record proof was forthcoming and the guilty parties were forced into a confession. In spite of these facts the honest, law-loving people of Christian county are asked to approve this conduct with their votes. The issue has been made, the gauge thrown down. The Republican committee has endorsed the accused candidate and the party organ has declared that the ticket will stand or fall together. The challenge is accepted by honest people and politics for the time being laid aside. The reputable voters of the Republican party will not lend their aid in such an attempt as this. The load is too heavy to ask them to help shoulder it. A great public duty rises up and their obligations as citizens call upon good men, regardless of party, to keep out of office those who have proven unworthy and unfaithful. The people will re-elect Mose West because he has proven himself an honest man, vigilant and faithful. They will not only defeat his opponent, but will likewise put the seal of disapproval upon all those who, relying upon the fancied strength that comes of blind partisanship, have joined hands with him and propose to make his fight their struggle. Let it be so. The "Big Four" will find that the line must be drawn somewhere and the voters will draw it this year at the misappropriation of private and public funds.

DOMESTIC SEAL CULTURE.

A scheme to rear Fur Seals in the Great Fresh Water Lakes.

"The time is not far distant," said John Farrent yesterday, "when a new industry will be inaugurated in this country, and that is the raising of seals. A seal is not alone valuable as a fur-producing animal, but it will yield from eight to twelve gallons of oil. The seal has great confidence in man. It may be readily tamed, and is a very docile animal. It exhibits much affection for its keeper, and is more intelligent than the dog."

"You look as if you doubted the practicability of such an enterprise," he remarked to the reporter. "Well, you will remember a few years ago some men in California determined to go into the ostrich business. People all over the United States thought they were missionaries, but nevertheless they expended a good deal of money in sending to Africa for ostriches and bringing them to California. Several of them died while being transported, but there were a sufficient number of them left to give the industry a fair trial. Even after the birds began to lay eggs people in California said the projectors of the ostrich had thrown away their money. But incubation went on satisfactorily, and the young ostriches came out in a healthy condition; and it was not long until all admitted that it was a success. More ostriches were brought from Africa, and the industry flourished to such a degree that the authorities in Africa issued an order preventing the taking of any more ostriches out of the country. There are plenty of seals and fin as the best specimens found in Africa."

"The seal industry promises as good results as ostrich-farming. They may be successfully raised in any of the Western lakes. They would do well in Lake Erie. The small islands and rocky promontories in the lake would be just the places for them to come out and bask in the sun. They are very fond of getting out on a rock and warming themselves in the sun."

"The difficulty in the way of securing the full benefit of the increase of seals after they had been placed in the lake would be that, as they are a migratory animal, many of them would make their way to Canadian waters, and this fact would make it unprofitable for those who would go into the enterprise."

"But there are many good-sized lakes in Michigan which would be very suitable for the introducing of seals and their rapid increase. Rocky promontories might be made about the center of any one of these lakes, and the industry would flourish from the start. They would soon learn to go regularly to a given place for their food. It would be an immensely profitable enterprise."

"Some people have an idea that a seal will not thrive excepting in a very cold climate. This is a mistake. They will thrive in any fresh-water lake. The seal is one of the coast of California, there is a prominence, and there are many seals there. They are protected by law. It must be remembered that it is warm there."

"During the winter months a cheap house for protection could be built on the edge of the lake, to which the seals could come for air, as they must have this. Then, houses would be necessary while the lake was frozen over. A seal can stay under water from fifteen to twenty minutes, when it must come to the surface for air."

"Please remember what I tell you, that within a few years the seal industry will be inaugurated in Michigan, and it will come to stay, and make big money for the men who invest in it, and you need not live many years to see Toledo ladies wearing seal coats, and from seals raised in Michigan lakes."—Toledo Blade.

THE POOR REPORTER.
His Life Not the Round of Pleasure Some People Imagine.

In the busy every day life of the newspaper reporter there are many things which to the uninitiated appear interesting and as many others which are repulsive to the finer feelings of a man. Constant contact with these instances harden the man whose duty it is to write about them and who is not averse to the events of the day. He goes about his work in a methodical way, that often leads those interested in the work of the reporter to inquire as to the kind of man who is both cheerful and indifferent to the most gross things in life. With a keen sense of humor, which is created by experience, he sees in some small thing just what the public wants to know about, and he writes it up in a way that is both interesting and instructive. The reporter is a man of many parts, and he must be able to write about the most trivial and the most important events of the day. He must be able to write about the most trivial and the most important events of the day. He must be able to write about the most trivial and the most important events of the day.

RELIGIOUS AND EDUCATIONAL.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church has more than 150,000 members.

The Church of England Bible Society has just celebrated its 50th birthday, and issued a French version of the New Testament.

The Baptist denomination in Liberia is the only self-supporting religious body in that country. There are thirty-one churches, with 3,000 members. They have a mission among the aborigines.

A child is educated when he knows how to use his powers, and has his faculties trained to work well. The school can show the pupil how to use his powers. The work of training must be done by the pupil himself, A. Cooper.

The organ of the Young Men's Christian Association has changed its name from the Watchman to that of the Young Men's Era. This change was made in harmony with a wide demand from its constituency in all parts of the land, and because its old name was the same as that of a leading paper in one of the larger denominations.

The total number of missions in China are: Thirty-nine societies, 525 male missionaries and 507 women, total, 1,032 missionaries, 162 native ordained helpers, 1,278 unordained, 34,353 communicants in the churches, and 14,437 pupils in the schools. $14,175 were contributed by the churches the past year, and the net increase in membership was 2,293.

Rev. Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D., says that every theological student ought to hear Mr. Moody preach at least once a year. "The great secret of all effective preaching of the Gospel is to present evangelical doctrine made red-hot by a Heaven-sent fervor for the salvation of souls, and to present it in a way that a child might understand."

The total number of souls who have professed salvation at the Salvation Army penitents for the five months ending with April 1st, 1890. At the court of Philadelphia, the officers of the organization, upon General Booth's instructions, set about to obtain 100,000 conversions in Great Britain alone during the following six months, and this number has now almost been reached.

A woman missionary on the Congo writes that the Sunday service lasts two or three hours, and the little children, getting tired, run outside to play, disturbing the worshippers and causing irreverence. One of the royal princes at Mandala, before Theobald's coronation, would know how to sympathize with these little black folks. He was asked what he thought of a church service, and he had been induced to attend. "Well," he replied, "I wish they had cut it in two. It was very long time to be without a church."

Rev. J. W. Spooner, of Pittsburgh, who is in Egypt, writes of the great Modern University at Cairo, founded in 1862, which, with its 10,000 pupils and 375 professors, is said to be the largest in the world. The pupils are all from the provinces of Egypt, and study on a blanket or straw mat. The Koran is the only book used for grammar, law, philosophy and theology. The professors receive no salary, but are supported by private instruction, by copying books, and by presents from rich scholars. From this great university goes forth annually a small army of fanatics whose whole influence is entirely and constantly exerted against progress and reform.

—We swallow at one mouthful the life that flatters and drink drop by drop the truth that is bitter.

—Every base occupation makes one sharp in his practice and dull in every other.—Sir P. Sidney.

The trouble is the busy men are so restless, and the idle men are so good natured.—Athenian Globe.

The rule of taking time without asking for it stops with kissing your girl.—Philadelphia Times.

The homing that a man pays to a handsome woman, a woman has been known to pay to a very mean man.

The average legislature does less harm in attending a base-ball game than in making legislation.—Baltimore American.

The nearer in front you get the more people there are to criticize your round shoulders and side-hill heels.—Milwaukee Journal.

No matter how generous-hearted a man may be, it never seems to do him any good to sit down and think how his next-door neighbor is.—Somerville Journal.

Feeling, sentiment, instinct, not reason and judgment, control in determining marriages. The happy marriages are those that make themselves.—Denver Times.

A man may flatter himself that he has been hurt, but he has been married three months he will have the supreme satisfaction of seeing his wife get there!—Richmond Recorder.

Of course we must recognize the fact that a politician to the other, "What honesty is the best policy." "Particularly," was the rejoinder, "when the other fellow takes the honesty."—Washington Post.

There is a sense in which it is duty to respect your neighbors. We must accept the inevitable, but we must make the best of the inevitable and press on to victory in spite of it.—Cumberland Press.

When you hear of the ill-tuck of a friend, do not go to him to make inquiries, for it would cause him pain. Go rather to his best friend, who will gladly tell you all about the misfortunes of his friend, and he will be a healthy friend.—Boston Journal.

A clergyman on entering a country store not long ago, opened the door just in time to see a woman remark very emphatically, "The devil!" "Ah-or-oh-Elder, I didn't know you were here," was the man's remark. "No apology is needed," was the reply, "the no friend of mine."—Chicago Tribune.

The man who produces the wheat owns it; the man who grinds the wheat has a right to a portion of the flour; the man who makes the sacks and carries the flour to market, is a justly entitled to a share. There are equitable property interests. Inter-estaking is slave making; and the most abject slave of all is the slave to the vice of avarice.

He who receives a heavenly endowment at death; avarice can not—The Universalist.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life. It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; the weightless leaf that seventy pounds weighed less than a feather, brought her a cure. It was a scrap of paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a simple bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another, and grew better fast, continued her use and in a few days, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, Druggist, Fort Smith, Trial Bottles of this wonderful Discovery Free at H. B. GARNER'S Pharmacy.
